Call me a parasite, sure —

I can’t change the body

I was born into.

We all must eat, somehow, no?

Me, I have learned to wait —

You’ll come running to me

when you need relief

from something you don’t understand,

when even your blood

betrays you.

A relic of an older world,
    they call me, but I have out-lived ice-ages
    & I will out-live you.
Even when my body drifts
    to the ocean floor,
I become a garden
    glowing in the darkness.
I am so large
    that I have no concept
of fear, of danger:
    I almost envy you your human folly, where everything you do is sweetened by risk.

If the heart is a building —
(with its chambers & atriums)
my mother my architect built for me
a palace.

But there are too many rooms
& no one inside them dancing
so many mirrors & undisturbed pools.

A beautiful thief is coming soon to plunder me I know it (I can feel her even now scaling up my walls, leaving a map of her bare prints through the rows of my hushed gardens)
