Course Description and Learning Objectives
This is a graduate level course in finance which will allow you to study a variety of topics in the retirement planning field. It is designed to provide students with knowledge of both public and private retirement plans. The public plans include Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid. The private plans include defined benefit and defined contribution plans and their regulatory provisions. The specifics of the various plans are analyzed as well as non-qualified deferred compensation plans. Finally, issues that individuals face in retirement, such as life-styles choices and medical issues are discussed.

Upon completing this course, you will:

- have an advanced understanding of the retirement process from start to finish, addressing issues such as estate planning and asset management
- gain practical knowledge and a competitive edge by strengthening technical skills in an evolving planning niche
- be able to address an array of client situations using the various types of plans and models studied
- be better prepared to pursue advanced level graduate studies in finance area

Academic Honesty
Dishonesty on examinations and quizzes or on other written assignments, illegal possession of an examination or quiz, obtaining information during an exam from the examination papers of another student, or otherwise from another student, assisting others to cheat, alteration of grade records, illegal entry to or unauthorized presence in an office are all considered instances of cheating. Violation of any of these requirements will be dealt with in the strictest manner.

Classroom Civility
Students are expected to assist in maintaining a classroom environment that is conducive to learning. In order to assure that all students have an opportunity to gain from time spent in class, unless otherwise approved by the instructor, students are prohibited from using cellular phones or beepers, eating or drinking in class, making offensive remarks, reading newspapers, sleeping or engaging in any other form of distraction. Inappropriate behavior in the classroom shall result in, minimally, a request to leave class.

Student Accommodations:
It is university policy to provide reasonable accommodations to students who have disabilities that may affect their ability to participate in course activities. Students with disabilities are encouraged to contact Disabled Student Services at (504) 280 6222 to discuss their individual needs for accommodations. All information regarding disabilities is confidential between you and DSS.
