Course Description and Content:

This course will examine historic preservation as part of the economic and social process of urbanization. We will explore how preservation has become such an integral part of both American and global culture and how it has been shaped by social, political, economic and governmental systems. This class will examine the broad themes associated with historic preservation while providing each student the necessary skills and discourse to better understand the complexities of urban planning in today's changing cities.

Learning Goals and Objectives:

After completing this class, each student should be able to:

- Discuss how the historic preservation movement developed in the United States.
- Answer the questions how and why, the process of preservation has been adopted in both the United States and abroad.
- Describe both the social and cultural aspects of historic preservation.
- Identify how political and governmental systems have shaped the process of historic preservation.
- Examine whether or not historic preservation actually helps to improve the overall life of a place and her population.
- Discuss the complexities associated with historic preservation.
- Discuss and evaluate historic preservation as both a social and economic factor in urban development.
- Identify contemporary problems associated with historic preservation.
- Allow students to trace the development of preservation literature and to challenge the long-standing central ideologies.
- Expose students to a combination of resources, terms and concepts that will encourage future thought and research into the complex discussion that is the preservation debate.

Course Texts:

Both Graduate and Undergraduate Students:

- Norman Tyler, Historic Preservation; An Introduction to Its History, Principles, and Practice, 2009.
- Ned Kaufman, Place, Race and Story; Essays on the Past and Future of Historic Preservation, 2009.

GRADUATES ONLY:

-Andrew Hurley, Beyond Preservation; Using Public History to Revitalize Inner Cities, 2010.

Additional readings will be uploaded to Moodle throughout the semester.

Assignment Overview: Students will be provided an overview of assignments during the first week of class. It is the responsibility of the student to note all due dates and submission requirements in their personal date book. Discussion about assignment format will be provided via Moodle and email. Questions about assignments may be posted on Moodle in the discussion board, or emailed to the professor directly.

Class attendance and participation: Students are required to post in all biweekly discussion boards. Note that participation is 10% or 15% of your grade, depending on if you are a graduate student or an undergraduate student. Numerous absences or failure to participate in biweekly discussion boards will result in a lower class grade. Students are required to actively participate in all Moodle sessions.

Positive class contributions are an integral part of your participation grade.

Readings and Discussion: Students are expected to attend Moodle forums with all reading material that pertains to the weekly lectures highlighted in the syllabus. A thorough understanding of the reading assignments is necessary to effectively participate in discussion forums and to effectively complete class assignments.

Grades:

Late assignments and Incompletes: Assignments are due on the day listed in the syllabus. A penalty of 10 points per day will be charged to all papers/ projects submitted after the due date.

Class attendance and participation: Students are required to attend all biweekly Moodle discussion sessions. Students are responsible for all material and course changes announced on Moodle, or sent via email. The course is designed to allow everyone who participates to do well. Numerous absences or failure to participate in Moodle discussion boards will result in a lower class grade prior to adding other assignment grades.

Outlined below are the adjustments that will be made to your overall course grade based upon non-attendance:

Missing 4 biweekly discussion boards will result in a maximum "B" grade achievement score.

Missing 5 biweekly discussion boards will result in a maximum "C" grade achievement score.

Missing 6 biweekly discussion boards will result in a maximum "D" grade achievement score.

Missing 7 boards will result in a maximum "F" grade achievement score.

Academic Honesty and Intellectual Integrity:

Academic honesty and intellectual integrity are fundamental to the process of learning and to evaluating academic performance. Maintaining such integrity is the responsibility of all members of the University.

Students must share the responsibility for creating and maintaining an atmosphere of honesty and integrity. Students should be aware that personally completing assigned work is essential to learning.

Students who are aware that others in a course are cheating or otherwise committing academic dishonesty have a responsibility to bring the matter to the attention of the course instructor and/or academic unit head or the Associate Dean.

Academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to, the following: Cheating, Plagiarism, Academic Misconduct, Falsification/Fabrication, and Accessory to Acts of Academic Dishonesty. Refer to the UNO Judicial Code for further information.

Statement of Accommodations for Students with Disabilities:

The University of New Orleans (UNO) is committed to providing for the needs of enrolled or admitted students who have disabilities under Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA). University policy calls for reasonable accommodations to be made for students with disabilities on an individualized and flexible basis. The Office of Disability Services

(ODS) is responsible for academic accommodations for students with disabilities and students should contact ODS to make their individual needs known. For more information, consult <http://www.ods.uno.edu/>.
