Course Description
Methods of Sociological Investigation is a graduate-level sociology course designed to introduce students to basic sociological research techniques, methodologies, and controversies. As such, it is broad in its focus and should be viewed as a modest beginning for budding social scientists. Students will study the logic and theory behind methods, learn about the strengths, weaknesses, and appropriateness of various techniques and methods; and be prepared to critique published research.

Required Texts
- Tricks of the Trade, Howard Becker ($8)
- Case Study Research: Design and Methods (4th edition), Robert Yin ($30)
- Survey Research Methods, Floyd J. Fowler ($40)
- Ethnographic Book TBA
- Selected Readings will be emailed out to you via your UNO account.

Course Requirements
- Attendance and Participation
  Students are expected to attend class and participate in discussions. Everyone is expected to contribute to the teaching/learning experience. It is important that you respect the contributions of your classmates. Grades for attendance and participation will be based on the following guidelines: A = no absences and frequent meaningful contributions, B = up to 2 absences and regular contributions, C = 4 absences and occasional contributions, D = 5+ absences and sporadic contributions, F = 5+ absences and/or no contribution. Attendance and participation is worth 10% of your grade.

- Assignments
  You will have 5 assignments throughout the semester. However, you are only responsible for submitting 4. This means that you may skip one assignment of your choice. No late papers will be accepted. Assignments will receive a check for a good understanding/application of the reading. Papers that provide a particularly good evaluation/application will receive a check-plus, while papers that provide a weak understanding/application will receive a check-minus. At the end of the semester, your papers will be graded as follows: check-pluses = A, checks = B, check-minuses = C. Papers are worth 50% of your grade.

- Discussant and Talking Points
  During the semester, you will be responsible for coming to class read and prepared for scholarly discussion. As such, you are to come to class with “notes,” observations, and questions from your readings. While you may employ your own style and format, I will also provide an example that I have found to be very helpful for class interaction, student understanding, and future aspirations. Throughout the semester on approximately 2-3 occasions you will be asked to be a discussion leader. On these occasions, you will make your talking points available to the class, present summaries of the material, and develop 3-5 questions to stimulate class discussion. This will be worth 15% of your grade.

Final Project
Your final paper will be a project proposal for an original survey study. This project will mimic the outline of the course, beginning with theory and hypotheses, including your research design and methodology, the construction of your survey instrument, and a concluding section in which you will write about your experience designing your study. In this project, you will make many judgments about what is methodologically appropriate for your study and you will be expected to support and defend your choices throughout the paper. There will be an additional handout that will give further details on the final project. You can expect your final project to range between 8-10 pages single-spaced. It will account for 25% of your grade.

Grading
Attendance and participation 10%
Discussant 15%
Assignments 50%
Final Project 25%
Total 100%

Academic Dishonesty and Classroom Conduct
As stated in the UNO Student Handbook available at:
http://www.studentaffairs.uno.edu/accountability.cfm

“Academic honesty and intellectual integrity are fundamental to the process of learning and to evaluating academic performance. Maintaining such integrity is the responsibility of all members of the University. All faculty members and teaching assistants should encourage and maintain an atmosphere of academic honesty. They should explain to the students the regulations defining academic honesty and the sanctions for violating these regulations.

“However, students must share the responsibility for creating and maintaining an atmosphere of honesty and integrity. Students should be aware that personally completing assigned work is essential to learning. Students who are aware that others in a course are cheating or otherwise committing academic dishonesty have a responsibility to bring the matter to the attention of the course instructor and/or academic unit head, or the Associate Dean. To promote academic integrity, students will assign the following pledge when required by the instructor.”

By submitting work in your name, I assume you are certifying the work as yours and yours alone. I have a zero tolerance for Academic Dishonesty.

Regarding classroom conduct, I support the principle of freedom of expression for both instructors and students. I believe in the rights of instructors to teach and students to learn. Maintenance of these rights requires classroom conditions that do not impede their exercise. Classroom behavior that seriously interferes with either (1) the instructor’s ability to conduct the class or (2) the ability of other students to profit from the instructional program will not be tolerated. An individual engaging in disruptive classroom behavior may be subject to disciplinary action, which occurs through Judicial Review Services.

Students with Disabilities
Students with documented disabilities can seek a variety of accommodations. If you have a disability, you must register with the Office for Disability Services and they will work with you to determine appropriate accommodations. Further information is available at:
