Course Description and Student Learning Outcomes

In this course, we will explore the reasons writers write and the genres they use to express their ideas—with emphasis on narratives, profiles, and reviews. While we will focus on these genres in each major project of the semester, other modes of expression and examination (such as description, analysis, summary, and visual conceptualization) are just as important in establishing your own sense of voice, audience, and purpose - factors that determine how we should write for a particular task. Through these activities, you will develop the skills necessary to express your own ideas across a variety of genres.

Your process of writing will include a number of activities: critical reading and writing, pre-writing, discussing, evaluating your audience, determining your purpose, developing a thesis, writing drafts, incorporating sources, revising your draft, editing, and proofreading. Your final work should be interesting, thoughtful, well-written pieces of college-level prose. You will complete a series of connected, scaffolded assignments that comprise our three major projects; each part will make up the whole of your project. By the end of this course, you will be aware of (and have practice in) applying these strategies to be effective thinkers and communicators. You will also learn that these skills transfer to your academic, everyday, and professional life.

The core of the class is the crafting of three long compositions, three short compositions, and the development of a writing portfolio that contains these compositions, and prewriting, sketches, drafts, revisions, and letters of reflection. Because the writing process incorporates many more elements than simply writing itself, you will be responsible for nearly daily writing and reading, and you will respond critically (and constructively) in writing to your own work and to that of your classmates.

While this is a writing-intensive course, lively participation is also expected in each weekly discussion of the readings. Critical reading is also a skill necessary for the development of our own writing. In other words, an examination of how others think and write will inform how you write, making your own prose better. You must know what good writing is to do it yourself.

After successful completion of the English 1157 and 1158 sequence, you will be able to display proficiency in the following areas:
Student Learning Outcomes:

By the end of the semester, students will be able to display proficiency in the following areas:

Rhetorical Knowledge

Students should be able to
- Determine purpose and audience in their own and others’ writing.
- Understand how purpose, audience, and context affect writing style, voice, and tone.
- Apply appropriate rhetorical strategies for diverse writing situations.
- Demonstrate familiarity with and/or compose in different genres (such as editorial writing, personal narratives, reviews, letters, or profile essays).
- Demonstrate familiarity with and/or incorporate different media (such as PowerPoint presentations, web pages, podcasts, or visual essays).

Critical Thinking, Reading, and Writing

Students should be able to
- Analyze and/or interpret texts and other forms of discourse in multiple genres.
- Use logical reasoning.
- Summarize, analyze, evaluate, and respond to the ideas of others.
- Understand writing as a process that involves invention, drafting, collaboration, and revision.
- Identify and incorporate persuasive techniques.
- Write informative, analytical, and persuasive essays.
- Incorporate the ideas and texts of others.
- Use library and non-library research methods.
- Evaluate sources.

Knowledge of Conventions

Students should be able to
- Use standard grammar.
- Follow conventions for word choice, syntax, spelling, and punctuation.
- Follow conventions appropriate for a genre and/or medium, such as style, diction, and format.
- Use a variety of sentence structures.
- Document sources in MLA style.

Course Writing

The work in this class will be comprised of three projects, each culminating in a Long Composition (LC). To prepare you to compose each project’s LC successfully, you will compose a Short Composition (SC) designed to help you understand the genre in which you’ll be writing.

These major assignments will be supported with a number of activities, called Process Work (PW), which we will complete both in class and as homework (including fast writing, brainstorming, group work, drafts, peer review, workshops, research, etc.). At the end of each project, you will turn in a project packet that includes the final draft of your LC, your previously graded SC, all of your PW, and a letter of reflection in which you discuss your writing experience.
At the very end of the course, you will compose a final letter of reflection in which you look back at your experience over the course. This reflection will serve as an introduction to your portfolio.

Assignments and Grading

Projects are graded on a 100 point (A-F scale, A=90-100, B=80-89, etc). You must submit all the assignments required for this course in order to earn a final course grade higher than F.

An “A” represents outstanding achievement relative to meeting course requirements.

A “B” represents achievement significantly above meeting course requirements.

A “C” represents achievement that meets course requirements in every respect.

A “D” represents achievement worthy of credit, although fails to fully meet course requirements.

An “F” represents achievement that fails to meet course requirements and is not worthy of credit.

IMPORTANT NOTE: If you earn a ZERO on any major assignment (Long Composition, Short Composition, or Reflection), you are likely to fail this course.

- Projects 1, 2, and 3 Long Compositions make up 60% of your final grade
- Projects 1, 2, and 3 Short Compositions make up 25% of your final grade
- Process work may include: journals, annotated bibliographies, essay outlines, short in-class freewriting, presentations (oral and PowerPoint) and reading of assigned essays/articles and participation in class discussions and activities, including quizzes 10% of your final grade
- Final reflective essay 5% of your final grade

I reserve the right to alter or modify any of these weighted percentages.

Papers written at the beginning of the semester are graded under the same standards as papers written at the end of the semester, and a final draft is graded under the same standards as the first draft of an essay. Because of this, grades on drafts at the beginning of the semester will almost always be low, and the goal should be to improve the writing so that the grades improve throughout the semester as you become more adept at incorporating the approaches being learned into your writing.

Course Policies

Being Part of a Classroom Community

In a writing class, all participants must behave with civility and respect at all times. Writing—and especially sharing writing—can be at times frightening. Moreover, what’s said and/or written about may sometimes be provocative. That’s a good thing; good writers take risks, and you should all feel comfortable enough to do so. I expect that even when you disagree with the opinions of anyone in the class (including me), you will respect the right of each individual to have those opinions and behave with civility and respect at all times. No one in our class should ever feel belittled or undermined by anyone else in the class. Any actions that purposefully undermine or belittle either another person or a classroom activity will not be tolerated. As your facilitator in this class, I will respect your opinions and behave with civility and respect at all times.

The Public Nature of Writing

Since academic writing (and most writing) is directed toward an audience, you should consider the writing that you do in this course “public,” that is, writing that others will read.
Obviously, I will read what you write. But, in the case of Peer Review, other students will also read your work. This provides a great learning opportunity for both reader and writer but also needs to be considered when picking topics and writing. If there is a personal subject that you don’t feel comfortable sharing, it would probably be best to write about something else in class. Also, I will periodically display stellar examples of student writing in class. I will use your writing ONLY to anonymously demonstrate fantastic examples of what we’re doing. If there is writing that you would rather I not use for this purpose, you can note it on the paper and/or send me an email.

Attendance, Preparation, and Participation

You are expected to attend class every day and to arrive on time. Students may be excused from approximately five MWF class periods. Beyond that, your final course grade will be lowered by 10% for every day you are absent. Please note that students who are consistently tardy will be counted absent. Being tardy for class three times will count toward a single absence.

In accordance with UNO policy, “A student who is not present to answer roll call is marked absent.” You are responsible for being in class, being on time, and having all writing, reading, or other assigned work completed. If you are absent, you are responsible for finding out what you missed and for having all assignments completed for the next class, regardless of the reason you were not present. If you wish to find out what was covered in the class in your absence, you must come to my office to see me. Do not e-mail me or call to ask about missed material. Your assignment grade will be lowered by a letter for every day it is late. Any failure to have an assigned draft for a peer review workshop will also be counted as an absence, since you will not be able to participate in class.

You will also read and respond to the writing of others, take quizzes, participate in peer group workshops, write drafts, and complete other assigned work. Failure to participate in or satisfactorily complete any significant portion of this work is serious enough to result in an F for the course.

Not only is attendance required, but so is presence of mind. The body alone cannot learn to write well; for that, presence of mind is required. Be present; be prepared; be nice. (Note: It is not nice to attempt to send or read text or e-mail messages when the instructor’s eye is turned).

Academic Integrity

Academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to, the following: cheating, tampering with academic records and examinations, falsifying identity, plagiarism, and being an accessory to acts of academic dishonesty. This class is a place where the intellectual property of others is consulted in order for us to form our own opinions. If we fail to credit the ideas of these other authors, we are committing the act of plagiarism, which is an ethical violation that is dealt with harshly. Acts of plagiarism undermine the entire process of academic inquiry. Using papers from other classes, passing someone’s writing off as your own, or failing to credit sources come with serious consequences. If I discover solid evidence of plagiarism, I will follow the University guidelines and file an Academic Dishonesty Report. If you think you may be crossing the line in how you use sources, ask me. Refer to the Student Code of Conduct for further information: www.studentaffairs.uno.edu.

Completion of all major projects is required to pass the course. A plagiarized project constitutes an incomplete project and results in failing the course.

Project, Essay, and Journal Submission

Students must type (double-space) all essays and journals. Pages must be stapled. Before turning in the final draft of a project, students should also put all early drafts, journals, freewrites, outlines, and peer review comments (anything that contributed to the writing of the essay or project) in the manila folder. Journals should be written under the same considerations of style and grammar as a formal essay.

Deadlines

All work must be typed and submitted by the assigned deadline on our course schedule. No late work will be accepted without prior permission or valid excuse. Any in-class essays written after the scheduled deadline must be made up during my next available office hours. Each out-of-class paper will be penalized a full letter grade for each class period it is late, without any exception, unless you contact me before paper is due to explain your reason for failing to come to class.

I do not accept late low-stakes assignments, such as quizzes and journals.

Presentations

You are also required to give/produce oral and/or digital presentations in this course (using PowerPoint or other software if you wish). These presentations will be part of the sequenced/scaffolded assignments leading up to your major projects/essays. Giving presentations will not only help you work through your ideas before you complete any high-stakes writing assignments; they will also help you refine a valued skill that should belong in the repertoire of any professional.

Emails and Instructor-Student Correspondence

Take care before sending emails—particularly if you are feeling upset or frustrated by a grade. In your emails to me, I ask that you refer to the course in the subject line of your message, before your message’s subject (Subject: ENGL 1157: Question about Essay 1). Remember: tone of voice and body language—aspects of communication that help clarify a writer’s intent—do not come across in emails. Please read your email carefully and critically before clicking on “Send.” I check my UNO email account frequently during regular business hours. Because I have so many students, though, I ask that you allow a twelve-hour response-time for any reply. I am happy to clarify or discuss my written comments on your work, but only after 24 hours have passed since I returned your work. That will give you enough time to consider my comments carefully and make an appointment to meet me during my office hours.

Revision of Essays and Projects

You will choose which projects or essays you will revise for an improved grade. I will assign due dates from which you can pick. I will not grade your revision unless the original essay or project (with my comments and annotations) accompanies the revised version in your portfolio folder.

I also want to stress that revision constitutes rewriting (and possibly rethinking) the entire essay or project, not just making surface changes or correcting my editorial suggestions. The revision will replace the grade you received on the original essay or project. The most effective way to revise is to come to my office to discuss the revisions as you are working on them.

Portfolio Collecting and Final Exam

Students must keep ALL the work (graded and ungraded) they produce for each project, and at the end of the semester, they must submit this writing as their portfolio of work from the semester.

In your manila folder, you will collect final, graded drafts of your major projects and ALL the other writing (formal and informal, high stakes and low stakes, in and out-of-class) for to these projects.
A final essay will be submitted at our final exam period, the topic of which will be a reflective essay in which the student analyzes his or her own writing from the semester. Students should bring their portfolios to the exam, so they can refer to specific elements of their work as they write this final essay.

You must submit your complete portfolio to me at the end of the course or you will receive an F. I will keep the portfolio for one semester. After that time, you may pick it up in my office.

Conferences
You will meet with me for a private conference at least once during the semester. This time will enable us to discuss specific issues in your writing in a one-on-one setting.

Moodle
This course will use Moodle and you will be responsible for checking Moodle on a regular basis. Also, you should make a habit of regularly checking your UNO e-mail account. You can gain Moodle access by following this link: http://uno.mrooms3.net/login/index.php

Writing Center
I have posted my office hours. Please feel free to stop by if you need help with your essays. If I am not available, the Writing Center is another option. Tutors are available to help you with your writing in LA 334 (280-7054). I encourage you to take advantage of this opportunity, but remember that it is not their function to correct, revise, or edit your essays—only to help you learn strategies and skills to strengthen and improve your writing on your own. http://www.uno.edu/lrc/writingcenter

Computer Labs
Out-of-class essays and journal entries must be typed and double-spaced. If you do not have a computer at home, utilize one of the many labs around the main campus.

Cell Phones and Pagers
I understand that cell phone use has become a way of life. However, in this class, you should turn off your phone and put it out of sight completely. If I see you text messaging during class, or anything of that nature, I will be forced to deduct credit from your participation grade. Our class is not long: you can be disconnected from the outside world for that time without harm.

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities
It is University policy to provide, on a flexible and individual basis, reasonable accommodations to students who have disabilities that may affect their ability to participate in course activities or to meet course requirements. Students with disabilities should contact the Office of Disability Services as well as their instructors to discuss their individual needs for accommodations. http://www.uno.edu/disability-services/
