Course Description: This course will cover a variety of writings set in New Orleans. We’ll be looking at each work to understand the unique view of the individual authors, as well as searching for themes that are central to New Orleans literature. How do these authors depict our city? What issues do they raise that continue to be relevant? We will discuss these topics and more while looking closely at over 100 years of writing.

Note: this is not a lecture course. Your responses and the class discussions will be essential to making this course a success.

Text: You will need to have the following books:

- Sara Roahen, Gumbo Tales
- Tennessee Williams, A Streetcar Named Desire
- Robert Olen Butler, A Good Scent from a Strange Mountain
- Natasha Tretheway, Bellocq’s Ophelia
- Where We Know: New Orleans as Home, ed. David Rutledge

Many of our readings will be posted on Moodle. You will need to print each of these and have them in class. Our tests – including the final – will be open-book; therefore, you will want to have a hard copy of each reading.

Grades and Assignments:

First, attendance and participation are both mandatory and will count for 10% of the final grade. One key to success in this class will be keeping up with the readings and with the material presented in class. Be here, be on time, and be prepared.

There is no difference between an “excused” or an “unexcused” absence. I will not be verifying doctor’s notes. If you miss more than four classes, you should drop the class. Each absence after the fourth will result in a 10% reduction in the final grade.

Second, there will be many quizzes. These will be to see that everyone is keeping up with the readings and the material presented in class. Quizzes will total 15% of the final grade. Thus, the daily in-class activity (attendance and quizzes) will count for 25% of the final grade.

Third, there will be one project/paper and one final paper. These will count for 15% each. We will discuss these papers in more detail, including the due dates, when they are officially assigned. I will hand out the first assignment on the second day of class.
There will be no late papers accepted. Computer problems are not sufficient cause for turning in a late paper. Show me work in progress to get some feedback and to avoid a failing grade caused by a failing printer.

A zero on either paper will result in a failing grade in the class.

Plagiarism will result in a zero for that paper (see previous sentence). If you plagiarize, you will fail the course and may be suspended from the university. When using the words or ideas of any source (books, best friends, internet, your mom) cite that source. If you have any questions about what counts as plagiarism, ask me before turning in your paper.

Finally, there will be two in-class essay tests worth 15% each during the semester, plus a final exam. The final exam will cover the entire semester and will count for 15% of the final grade.

Final Grade: Attendance and Participation: 10%
Quizzes: 15%
Two tests: 15% each
Paper/Project: 15%
Final Paper: 15%
Final Exam: 15%

Keep track of your grade. You may ask me at any time during the semester how you are doing.

We will try to stick to the schedule below, but some dates and assignments may change; you will be responsible for keeping up with those changes and with class material even in the case of an absence.
